Notes from the Commodore...

It is that time of the year to think about boating safety. Unfortunately many take for granted their safety devices, especially life jackets. If you recall, we just lost three local men who drowned for not wearing their life jackets when the water conditions changed. Life jackets simply don't save lives unless they are worn.

I want to thank Scott Funderburk and John Hergenrother for volunteering to head-up the committee for the Dauphin Island Race for 2007. I hope that all our members get actively involved in some capacity. We have a lot of work to do and the starting gun has sounded.

For those that were not at our last meeting, Cynthia Dismukes and Rob Milford are now official members of our organization.

If you are sailing in this year's Dauphin Island Race, we wish you good luck.

Our next meeting will be on April 2, 2006. I am sure that much will be discussed about our Glorious 4th Race. Winter is over and it is time to get back on the water.

Marina news..

According to the Harbormaster, Chris Bailey, wet slips on A and B dock are fully assigned and the slips on C dock will be available as water and electric are restored. Of course, all three docks have been only partially restored and boat capacity is much less than before the recent hurricane.

Gasoline should be available as soon as the pumps are replaced this week. Diesel fuel will not be available at Lake Forest.

Meeting highlights...

Harbor sailing this summer with the Club's six sunfish was suggested by Commodore Art Anderson. Members with small sailboat experience could offer instruction to other members who have never enjoyed this type of sailing. Maintenance and repairs of the small craft will be scheduled to ready the boats before the summers season.

Volunteer were sought for planning the 2007 Dauphin Island Race. With a smaller membership this time, most, if not all members, will need to participate in one or more of the major activities.

Jim Chambers mentioned that LFYCI was the only GYA club without a web site. An effort will be made to prepare a web page and maintain it throughout the year including information and registration for the 2007 Dauphin Island Race.

A rum raffle is being planned for the April 15th Luau at the Yacht club. Gretchen Funderburk and Brenda deAngelo will have the tickets for sale prior to the 15th.

Plans for the Chili Cook-Off on April 9 are being finalized and registrations are being taken. Kathy Anderson and Diane Hergenrother are members to contact.

The 50/50 was won by Philip Durant.
